Snowflakes for Sandy Hook

Schools, including Sachem, from around the world have donated snowflakes to help decorate the buildings for students from Sandy Hook.

Students from multiple Sachem schools, including Sequoya Middle School and Gatelot Elementary, recently took part in some outreach for Sandy Hook Elementary School in Newtown, Conn.

Students are going to be attending an alternative school in Connecticut after the tragic events that took place last month and there was an initiative to decorate and brighten this new building.

Sequoya sent a letter with seven boxes of constructed snowflakes as a gesture of good will and a means of decorating. This outreach was coordinated by Doreen Schaefer and the Renaissance Community Service Club at Sequoya. In a letter to Sandy Hook staff and students, Sequoya wrote, “these snowflakes symbolize the thoughts and prayers that go out to you and the community of Newtown. We are doing this in order to bring more peace and kindness to the world in your honor.” The idea was brought to the school by Lauren Shaw, a Sequoya Teacher’s Assistant, who learned about it from the girl scouts, according to building principal Frank Panasci. “Doreen also plans on constructing a Random Acts of Kindness Wall in Sequoya to honor those lost in Sandy Hook,” Panasci said.

From the desk of Sachem Superintendent James Nolan

To the entire Sachem Family,
I hope that this new year brings you and your family good health, peace and happiness. We are truly very fortunate for all that we have at Sachem, but our greatest blessings are certainly our children and the mutually respectful relationships and friendships that we have enjoyed for many years.

As we approach the midpoint of this school year, we continue to work interdependently to provide our students with a safe and effective learning environment which will prepare them to meet with success in college and/or careers. Looking ahead, we are already preparing for our future and beginning to have conversations about next year’s budget. Sachem is extremely fortunate to be guided by a Board of Education that is supportive and actively involved in all facets of our school community. Sachem has been presented with many challenges in the past few years as a result of our economy, and together we have been able to meet and surpass even the highest expectations. Our Board of Education works tirelessly to maintain exceptional learning experiences for our children while remaining sensitive to the needs of our taxpayers. I believe the preparations and discussions involving next year’s budget will be the most challenging we have experienced in many years. Please make every effort possible to become actively involved in the budget process, so that you can become fully informed and share accurate information with your family and friends.

You have often heard me speak of our Sachem Family, and I sincerely hope that you realize how important “family” is to me. Our Sachem Family includes our beautiful students, their amazing families, our talented, dedicated and caring employees, and all those who live within our school district.

Each and every member of our Sachem Family contributes uniquely to our success. There would be nothing more wonderful than having the optimal level of interdependent understanding, involvement, trust, respect and communication in developing our 2013-2014 school district budget. Unfortunately, apathy and misinformation become our greatest obstacles. Only together can we continue to improve and enhance the Sachem Central School District that we have been so proud of for many years and is the envy of so many others. I have been blessed to call Sachem my family for the past 30 years, and I believe in our students, our families and our employees with all of my heart. This is why I am confident that together we will continue to excel during these most difficult and challenging times. We have far too much to be proud of, and we must use every bit of our collective time and talents to preserve our school district for both our current and future students.

Thank you as always for your help, support and friendship. I look forward to seeing you in the very near future, and I once again urge you to get involved in our budget process. May you and your family continue to enjoy good health, peace and happiness now and always. WE ARE SACHEM!!

Letter from the editor

Happy New Year to everyone in Sachem! We’re excited about 2013 and the great success our staff and students will have as always. Every year proves to me a new set of goals and milestones that allows Sachem to achieve its “tradition of excellence” status. For that I am forever proud to be a member of the Sachem Family.

From a communications standpoint, we launched the “Sachem News Hour” radio show on WSHR in late November and we’re eager to grow the information sharing on that platform. Tune in for live broadcasts on Thursdays from 8-9 p.m.

If you’re not already following us on Twitter, you can find us @SachemSchools, and likewise with Facebook.com/SachemSchools. Each month we’ll expand this publication, offering more and more interesting stories and tidbits you can’t get anywhere else. If you have any news or information you’d like us to share across our multiple digital platforms, please do not hesitate to contact me directly. You can email me at CVaccaro@Sachem.edu. #GoArrows!

SCTA hosting “Not Just Ladies Night Out”

The Sachem Central Teachers Association is presenting “Not Just Ladies Night Out” on Wednesday, Jan. 23 to benefit the Carol M. Baldwin Breast Cancer Research Fund. The event will take place at Villa Lombardi’s in Holbrook, N.Y. from 6-10 p.m. Sachem alum and Olympian Maria Michta will make a special guest appearance.

Sagamore hosts Citizens Campaign for the Environment

Eighth grade writing workshop students at Sagamore Middle School were honored to attend a presentation by Citizens Campaign for the Environment educators Maryellen Dour and Tara Bono last month. Students participated in a lab experiment using a model of Long Island’s aquifer system to learn about how the aquifer works and how we can monitor, protect, and improve our drinking water and local environment. Student feedback was positive and energized. “I was very amazed to learn that our water is under our feet,” said Marisa Filarosa. “I never realized that chemicals or fertilizer that we put on our grass or dump into the dirt can affect our drinking water.” All of Mrs. Gennosa’s and Ms. Anziano’s writing workshop students were able to participate. Imad Chaudry was inspired by the presentation. “Regular citizens can have a say in local government,” he said. “The Citizens Campaign motivated me to actually do something that will benefit the local society. It showed me the determination people like them can have to make our society, government, and the environment better for us all.”

Mary Rae reinforced the importance of working to improve our own community and protect our future. “I would like to take my children and grandchildren to the beaches on Long Island in the future,” said Rae. “I’ve helped the community by getting my school to help preserve the Brookhaven Wildlife Center. I will now encourage my parents and friend’s parents to use chemicals moderately and to not dump things in drains or toilets.” These Sachem students are writing letters and creating public service announcements to have their voices heard. This generation will be leaders in the effort to keep our drinking water safe and our environment healthy. They are spreading the word about the importance of taking steps to protect our environment like minimizing the chemicals we put on the ground, recycling and reusing, respecting nature, and most importantly, staying vigilant and having a voice in helping to keep our environment healthy.

Tecumseh Elementary implements six school action teams

Tecumseh has implemented six action teams this year to promote its theme “Healthy Mind, Body and Hearts.” Teachers and parents are working together to develop different ideas to incorporate throughout the school year. *The Healthy Mind committee was designed to help students understand the importance of exercising their brain. Students will test their brains with a variety of puzzles and mind games. *The Health Body Committee will be running “Hoola Hoops For Hearts” in an effort to promote physical activity as well as contributing the donations to a charity. *Healthy Heart Committee is designed to help students understand the importance of kindness and giving back to others. The Committee arranged the Toys For Tots program to run during the month of December. *PARP (Parents As Reading Partners) is a program designed to foster the love of reading in children by asking parents to set aside 15 minutes daily to read with their children. The PARP committee created fun and exciting activities that students will experience during the month of February. *An Anti-Bullying team was implemented this year to develop ideas to foster anti-bullying among the students. *The Seven Habits of a Healthy Child committee is a team of teachers and parents working together to help incorporate the practices and language of Stephen Covey’s The Seven Habits of Happy Kids into the daily lives of Tecumseh students. The team’s goal is to help children embrace and internalize the seven habits as part of their daily lives. The teams plan is to achieve this goal by implementing activities that include Seven Habits. Students are given ‘high fives’ when they are caught implementing one of the seven habits. The committees form a partnership between teachers and parents. And by working together a healthy learning environment is created for all children. ****

Reading to change lives

Students at Tecumseh Elementary School will be reading to change lives. Tecumseh is excited to be partnering with Blanca’s House for the 2013 Parents as Reading Partners (PARP) program. Blanca’s House is a nonprofit organization of volunteer healthcare professionals who donate their time to provide children and their families with free medical treatment. As a result of this partnership, this year’s theme will be “Reading Changes Live and Puts a Smile on Children’s Faces”. The kick-off will take place next month during the school day for students and with a milk and cookies night for families. The PARP Program is run by librarian Tina Evan and classroom teacher Devon Lampasona.

Doug Shanahan gets two hall calls

Not long after he learned he will be inducted to Hofstra University’s Athletic Hall of Fame in April, Sachem alum Doug Shanahan was notified that he will be inducted to the Long Island Lacrosse Hall of Fame as well. The induction reception will take place on Feb. 8 at the Huntington Hilton Hotel. Joining Shanahan as inductees are Allison Comito, Keith Cromwell, A.J. Haughen, Jay Jalbert, David Kelly, Christopher LaMonica, Christopher Massy, Tricia Leigh Simon and Bob Vlahakis. Shanahan graduated from Sachem in 1997, starred at Hofstra in lacrosse and football, had a tryout with the Jets and continues to play Major League Lacrosse today.
